

CIRCULATE

CIRCULATE has been developed with the health of the circulatory system in mind and provides generous levels of a comprehensive range of vitamins, minerals, nutrients and plant extracts to support the heart and circulatory system, and help the body generate energy for vitality and wellbeing.

It provides high levels of B vitamins which are important in the maintenance of normal heart health, heart function, and the formation and maintenance of red blood cells to support circulation, energy production and a reduction in tiredness and fatigue. B vitamins also help to support the nervous system, immune system and psychological function.

This unique formula also includes L-arginine, ginkgo biloba, hawthorn and CoQ10. L-arginine is an amino acid that the body converts into nitric oxide - an important molecule associated with the health of blood vessels. It is known as a vasodilator which means it can help blood vessels to relax and widen, helping to increase blood flow and improve circulation. Wider blood vessels also help to improve the delivery of oxygen and nutrients to muscles during exercise.

Coenzyme Q10 (CoQ10) is required by all cells in the body and is used to process energy. It is naturally present in the body but declines with age. Cells use CoQ10 to perform a whole host of essential roles to maintain healthy bones, muscle, metabolism, and neurological function, with highest levels found in the muscles and the heart.

Natural botanicals in this formula include Ginkgo biloba which has a long association with heart health, and Hawthorn berries extract, which contains specific antioxidants that nourish the cardiovascular system. An abundance of antioxidant vitamins A, C and E help to protect cells from oxidative stress and support a normal immune system.
